The 2007 Tucson Residential Housing market will be remembered as an “adjustment year!” Coming off several years of record breaking sales and an equity growth of as much as 50%-60% for many homeowners, this adjustment seemed drastic to some.

In looking at the 2007 Tucson Association of REALTORS® Multiple Listing Service Housing Statistics, there were some positive points, including, a 2007 Median Sales Price of $220,000 remaining unchanged over 2006 and the 2007 Average Sales Price of $272,601 actually increasing from the $271,597 of 2006. Prices did not decline as they did in many areas of the country. We have seen some price declines in a few neighborhoods. However, those are properties that REALTORS® and sellers have priced competitively, are in excellent condition and continue to attract buyers.

The last several months of 2007 indicate that the Tucson market is stabilizing, as we see fewer homes coming on the market, and an increase in new contracts opening in escrow, which is causing a shrinking inventory.

Let's remember that real estate markets are local and Tucson's dynamic economic climate and a “pent up buyer demand” lends itself to a stabilized, then healthy and growing market in 2008.

2007 MLS President
JUDY LOWE
